Checklist for Success

Your career development can be both exciting and overwhelming at the same time. The process involves a series of manageable steps and the good news is you don’t have to do every step in order or on your own. You can receive assistance for each of these steps with the help of your Career Coach. Perhaps the most important issue regarding the internship or career search is to understand that action is required. Start checking off as many of these activities as you can, and you’ll find yourself on your way to a great career.

Step 1: Clarify Your Goals—“Know Yourself”
- Identify your personal strengths, skills, interests, and values.
- Practice articulating what skills you have that solve problems for employers.
- Identify key skills/projects you obtain(ed) from your academic major.

Step 2: Research Opportunities—“Know the World of Work”
- Research potential career fields: job titles, typical industries, entry-level jobs, and salaries.
- Consider geographic locations, size of firms, and government employment.
- Research organizations or companies that might hire someone with your skills, interests, and background.
- Identify the top three geographic areas where you would like to live and work.
- Identify five to seven potential employers you intend to reach out to (Step 3).
- Conduct informational interviews with practicing professionals in careers of interest to you.

Step 3: Get Ready for the Search—“Prepare Yourself”
- Complete your profile in Career AGGIE and upload a resume.
- Make an appointment with your Career Coach to review documents and to discuss effective networking.
- Prepare a LinkedIn profile and/or a portfolio to highlight your skills, talents, and experiences.
- Develop a 30-second introduction for short encounters with employers and at career fairs.
- Identify international opportunities for internships/career positions and research business practices abroad.
- Identify 3-5 individuals who will serve as references and ask if they will provide a good recommendation.
- Attend employer panels, workshops, and fairs. Check the event calendar on Career AGGIE.
- Join a national association representing your specific career field.
- Access a variety of online job posting sites beginning with links listed on the Career Services’ website.
- Complete a mock interview with your Career Coach and use the Acing the Interview guide.
- Obtain interview attire which is appropriate for the field in which you plan to work.
- Ensure your voicemail greeting and email address are professional.
- Create a neutral/professional email address to give employers.
- Review your social networking sites (i.e., Facebook, blogs, etc.) and be comfortable with the image they portray of you to potential employers.

Step 4: Start Searching—“Take Action”
- Check Career AGGIE frequently for internship and career opportunities. Set up a job search agent and receive customized emails.
- Prepare to attend career fairs by visiting the Career Services’ website and researching organizations.
- Develop a system for tracking your contacts, interviews, and other career-search activities.
- Follow-up on every interesting job lead with a targeted cover letter and resume.
- Prepare a strong resume and cover letter to share with employers you may network with.
- Develop a list of potential networking contacts—both employers and alumni—and keep in touch with them.
- Follow-up on each cover letter/resume you send to the employer requesting an interview.
- Send thank you letters or emails to every person who interviews you.
- Review the results of your actions with your Career Coach to adjust your career search plans as needed.
- Negotiate a starting salary and benefits package that suits your needs and matches your skills.
- Report your job offer to Career Services or contact your faculty internship coordinator to receive internship credit for your related experience.
Internships
Improve Your Employability

By graduating with one or more internship experiences, you position yourself for meaningful career employment in the global economy. Internships allow you to combine career-related work experience with academic coursework to enrich your total educational experience, while earning academic credit and pay!

Through an internship, you:
- Gain the career-related experience employers want.
- Become more marketable for the job market or graduate school.
- Build networking relationships/contacts for the future.
- Earn college credit and pay.

Where to Look for Internships:
- Career AGGIE
- Indeed.com
- Internships.com
- LinkedIn
- Career Fairs
- Company websites
- Personal Connections

Tips to Look for an Internship:
Visit your Career Coach to create a customized strategy to find the internship that will give you the employment and skills necessary to succeed in your field. Start early to obtain an internship that fits your career. Once hired as an intern, see your department’s internship coordinator and review the internship student manual on the Career Services website under the Student Employment and Internship tab.

How to Succeed in an Internship:
(derived from Lisa Quast’s College Grads: 10 Things You Need To Know To Succeed At Your First Job)
1. Create a game plan: work with your internship coordinator to understand what you’ll be doing in 2 weeks, 4 weeks, 6 weeks. Understand key tasks and projects you’ll need to complete by setting meaningful objectives for your internship.
2. Understand how you will be reviewed: Internships are a great opportunity for constructive feedback. Understand how your supervisor will be reviewing your performance and seek out feedback.
3. Be professional, on-time, and efficient: dress professionally, be on-time every day, stay for your full hours, and work hard during your hours. Make a great impression and get your tasks done in a timely manner.
4. Get to know others in the office: this is a great time to network and learn about what they are working on. You might learn valuable information about the company and areas you are interested in exploring. If you build good relationships, these individuals can be important assets in your job search upon graduation.
5. Pay attention during meetings: Meetings are the perfect time to learn about what is going on in other parts of an office. Focus on the conversation. Make sure to share what you are working on if you have the opportunity.
6. Prove you are an asset to the organization: Many times, internships can lead to future full-time jobs. Finish your work on time, go above and beyond what is expected, be professional, build relationships. You can make your internship what you want it to be!

Nearly 60% of students who complete internships receive at least one job offer upon graduation.
National Association of Colleges and Employers, 2015
Employers consistently remark that the best candidates have effectively researched their organizations. Thoroughly researching the organization can help you:

- Describe in detail your ability to contribute to the employer’s needs and how you will be successful in that environment. How will your skills help fill a need or solve a problem?
- Articulate why you have an interest in working for that organization.
- Quantify your experience with success statements identifying what you accomplished, the tools and processes you used, and your results.
- Understand how your personality will “fit” in the environment and how your career goals align with the company’s goals.

Getting Started

- Research the company’s website thoroughly—use the Employer Research Checklist below to prepare.
- Visit your Career Coach to identify alumni and employers who work inside the organization.
- Search publications online and in print.
- Join professional organizations in your field to access member directories.
- Speak with recruiters at career fairs to gain knowledge of the company.
- Use LinkedIn and GlassDoor to view company profiles and contacts.

Your Success Statements should be more than just a list of duties and tasks. They should be focused on your responsibilities and unique contributions.

A resume and cover letter should be tailored to a job description. A general resume or cover letter will not be as effective. Use the job description to guide how you tailor the documents.
Networking means developing a broad list of contacts and accessing them when looking for a job. The best place to start developing your network is with your family, friends, and neighbors. Expand your network through your Career Coach, alumni, professors, and potential employers working in your field—both in person and in your social networks.

Continue to broaden your network through volunteering, participating in extra-curricular activities, completing internship experiences, and joining professional student organizations. Your Career Coach can help you identify alumni who have volunteered to help students in their networking efforts.

Informational interviews or job shadowing with professionals working in your field will help you gain more information about an occupation or an industry. These individuals can also help you expand your network by referring you to their colleagues and co-workers. The next page offers more details about informational interviews.

Prior to scheduling informational interviews or job shadowing, make sure you have a well-developed, targeted resume. Your Career Coach can help to ensure you are marketing your qualifications appropriately. Make sure to send a follow-up thank you email or letter in a timely fashion showing your appreciation for your contact's time and assistance—inclusive of your updated resume.

Consider developing a spreadsheet or database for organizing your networking contacts. This will help you track the contact you've had with this ever-expanding list. Remember, in order for your networking contacts to remember you and your skills, you must continue communicating.

Above all, networking is a skill that requires practice and patience. You will use these networking skills throughout your career. Every relationship you develop increases the likelihood of your getting a job offer!

Build Your Network Through:
- Alumni and Employer Contacts
- Alumni Organizations
- Networking Sites (LinkedIn)
- Faculty and Advisors
- Clubs and Professional Organizations
- Former Employer Contacts
- Family, Friends, and Neighbors
- Sororities and Fraternities
- Classmates
- Church Groups
- Hobby/Sport Groups
- Conferences, Seminars, Workshops
- Political Groups
- Service Providers (dentist, insurance agent, etc.)
- Volunteer Organizations

Your career search begins before you ever write a resume or cover letter. It begins the moment you develop a relationship with someone inside the organization.

Donna Crow, Executive Director
Career Services & Student Success
Informational interviewing is a valuable way to gain specific information and advice, establish your career goals, uncover job openings, expand your network of contacts, and refine your resume.

Make a Connection and State Your Purpose
Initiate the interview by emphasizing your appreciation and identifying the source of your contact.

“I found your name in the Student Alumni Mentor Network at Career Services at USU. My Career Coach recommended I connect with you via LinkedIn. My economics degree coupled with my data analysis skills prepares me for an opportunity with Goldman Sachs. Securities, trading, and investment banking all sound interesting to me at this point, but I want to go into my interviews with a clear sense of direction. I would like to get your advice on my career path.”

Sample Questions
- How did you first get started in this industry?
- What strategies would you recommend for getting a job in your field or with your organization?
- Will my education, skills, and experience prepare me for a job in your field? If not, where am I deficient?
- What do you do in a typical workday?
- What is the availability of housing and the cost of living in this area?
- What skills are necessary to perform well in a position similar to yours?
- Do you know of anyone else I could speak to about this type of position or who might have an interest in my background?

Follow-up Immediately and Regularly
Not only do you want to let the professional know you appreciate the advice he or she shared, but you may also want to use this individual as a valuable contact in your career search. Send a thank you note or email immediately after your meeting (see sample Follow-up below). As you read an interesting article, do research, work on a project, or need a “real-world” resource, re-connect with this contact.

Sample Informational Interview Follow-up
(email version)

Dear Mr. Thompson:

Thank you for taking time from your busy schedule to meet with me last Friday. Your insights into the future of online trading were fascinating, and I appreciated the opportunity to meet with several of your e-traders.

As you recommended, I contacted John Smith to discuss potential job openings at his company, and I will be meeting with him next week. Please let me know if you hear of any other job openings for a financial manager or if you have further suggestions for people whom I should contact. I have attached my resume for your review.

Thank you, again, for your assistance. I hope to see you at the Career Services MBA Networking Event at Utah State University in the fall.

Sincerely,

Jane Adams

Social Media

Your Online Presence

Social Media is becoming a factor in employability more and more. Your social media should be a positive factor in your employability. Here are some tips on “professionalizing” your online presence:

- Periodically search your name; online information can be inaccurate, out-of-date, or worse, embarrassing. Remove questionable pictures, blog entries, or comments.

- Fill your profiles with keywords. All of your social media profiles should include key words/phrases that describe your skills and what you can do for an employer. Use job posting sites, like Career AGGIE, to view job listings. Look at social media profiles of people in positions of interest to you to help you brainstorm keywords.

- Expand your social networks via Facebook, LinkedIn, and Twitter with people engaged in your field of interest. Once a member, comment on discussions, network with people who share common interests/career goals, and find job listings.

- Blog about your career interests, campus life, travel, sports, activities, etc. Blogging can demonstrate your knowledge and enthusiasm to a potential employer. You can also comment on the posts of industry bloggers.

- Update your social networks by sharing articles that are relevant to the industry you want to work in.

LinkedIn

LinkedIn is a social networking site used for PROFESSIONAL networking. It is a great way to stay connected to individuals that can support you on your career path. LinkedIn also provides information regarding job opportunities, industry news, company research and much more. Below are some general tips.

- Write an informative profile headline
  (short, memorable, professional slogan- check out the profiles of professionals and recent alumni)

- Use a professional photo
  (this is not FaceBook - use a high-quality photo of you alone)

- Show off your education
  (include all your schools, majors, minors, courses, GPA, study abroad, etc. Don’t be shy!)

- Develop a professional summary
  (this is similar to a cover letter- be concise, confident, personable, and talk about your goals!)

- Fill “skills & expertise” with keywords
  (this is the place to use keywords that employers search for- find relevant contacts and look at their skills section)

- Update your status regularly
  (stay on your network’s radar and build your professional image- mention articles, authors, etc.- recruiters read your posts!)

- Show your connectedness
  (join groups related to your goals and interests- stay updated on current news and learn the lingo- start with your university)

- Collect diverse recommendations
  (the best profiles have recommendations from various work experiences- they are very impressive from the recruiter perspective)

- Claim your unique LinkedIn URL
  (set your LinkedIn to “public” and create a unique URL that is easier to include on your resume)

- Share your work
  (add actual examples of your work or accomplishments to sell your skills more effectively)

WEB DEVELOPER POSITION

My ability to create and implement dynamic web content using a variety of software and design tools makes me a great fit for your organization. In December 20xx I will complete my BS degree in Management Information Systems with an emphasis in web design.

My course work and related experience has refined my skills in Adobe Illustrator, Photoshop, ezPlug, and HTML. My experience as a departmental computer consultant gave me exposure to both PC and Apple platforms, while troubleshooting repairs on over 40 work stations. As an intern with the Red Cross, I designed enhancements to their website by working at several levels in the organization.

I will contact you next week to schedule an opportunity to discuss my qualifications as they relate to your needs. Thank you for your consideration, and I look forward to talking with you.

Sincerely

Maria Lopez

PTC
Engineering Division
2930 East Randolph Road
Chicago, IL 84039

IRRIGATION ENGINEER POSITION

Having recently studied the design-build process used at PTC and hearing your presentation in Dr. DuPont’s research course, I became interested in joining PTC in order to effectively solve wastewater management challenges with your international clients. The following is an outline of the skills that will allow me to be effective on your design team:

- Working towards a BS degree in civil engineering with emphasis in wastewater management;
- Experience building wastewater treatment systems in Chile working with Engineers Without Borders;
- Ability to communicate project status in English and Spanish to clients, suppliers, and community members;
- Produced designs using CAD;
- Expanded leadership skills while serving as the ASCE vice president and student representative on the College of Engineering Dean’s Council.

Working with local communities as a member of PTC is the way I want to begin my career. I would appreciate an interview and will contact you next week to schedule an appointment.

Sincerely

David Lawson

Ms. Heather Preston
Marketing Manager
Alcoa
12345 West Bernardo Drive
San Diego, CA 92717

Dear Ms. Preston:

After reading about your company's successful publicity campaign in the March 3 edition of the Examiner, I became very interested in a marketing assistant position with your firm. I was given your name by Dr. Vernon Cluff, a former professor of yours, who suggested I meet with you to discuss my ability to support your marketing department. As a recent MBA, I can offer you strong member recruitment and event planning experience.

Last year, while planning an alumni event that attracted 400 people, I helped launch a new membership recruitment program for Utah State’s Alumni Center. This strategy resulted in a 36% increase in revenue over the previous year’s event. My work ethic is supported by outstanding organizational and networking skills.

I am prepared for the opportunity to work with vendors and manage events for Alcoa. I will be in San Diego on April 15-18 and would like to discuss how my combination of organizational skills and enthusiasm could significantly improve relationships with your vendors and guests. I will contact you on March 12 to schedule an appointment. I look forward to speaking with you soon.

Sincerely,

Rita Johnson

Remember to Follow-up

Whether you are following up after an interview or developing a relationship with a potential employer, keep the lines of communication open. If you say you are going to follow-up within a specified time frame, be sure to do so.

Follow-up Letter – an opportunity to inquire about your previous communications or encounters with a potential employer.

Thank You Letter – sent as a follow-up to any networking opportunity or interview.

INTERPRETIVE PARK RANGER INTERN

My love for wildlife and our national parks coupled with experience in Grand Teton National Park, has me very excited about sharing knowledge about this park to visitors with the National Park Service. Last summer I worked as an interpreter and first mate on Colter Bay Scenic Cruises. I enjoyed sharing information about landscapes, wildlife, and history in a fun and educational way with up to 40 guests on Jackson Lake. As a junior in Wildlife Science, I am prepared and excited to again work with guests in my favorite national park.

I am prepared to present short guided talks at visitor centers or on the trails I have hiked so often. The exposure to other divisions will allow me to apply my field and communication skills while learning to help manage this “National Treasure.” Additionally, my love for the outdoors and commitment to preserving parks and wildlife is enhanced when I have the opportunity to share my passions with people of all ages from across the world.

After completing my degree in Wildlife Science, I hope to launch my career with the National Park Service; this chance to work with your team is an unmatched opportunity for me. I am ready to provide the park with an informed, enthusiastic, and hard working interpretive intern.

Sincerely,

Amber Crane

This is a sample of how you can tailor your resume and cover letter together. The cover letter ties in an experience from the resume and expands on it.

Remember, tailored resumes and cover letters are much more effective in the job/internship search.
Important Tips for a Reference Sheet

- Always ask your references if they are prepared to give you a good recommendation. Provide your references with a resume, job description, and type(s) of job you are applying for so they can speak about your qualifications effectively.
- Provide three to five references.
- Use at least one (more is better) employment-related reference. Good sources include previous supervisors, co-workers, faculty, advisors, or community/service leaders.
- Keep personal references to a minimum.
- If printing, use the same color and quality of paper for the reference sheet as you do for your resume.
- Only submit your references when requested. Otherwise, take your reference sheet with you to the interview.
- Thank your references and anyone else instrumental in your job search when you accept a job offer.

As your career builds, keep your reference list up-to-date.
